Despite low numbers, Packer looking for successful year

By Todd Irwin

FLINTON — Blair Packer faces the same problem every wrestling season at Glendale. He doesn't have a lot of wrestlers, will forfeit a couple weights and can't afford to have injuries.

Yet he always finds a way to win.

Even with low numbers last season, the Vikings managed to go 10-5 — the third best record in Progressland.

This season, the Vikes only have 15 wrestlers on the roster and eight of those are untested sophomores and freshmen. But Packer can see his team still having a winning season.

"I think if the kids pull together, they should have a successful season," said Packer, who enters his 20th year as the Viking mentor with a 178-131-3 record. "We'll be forfeiting some weights, but the kids have always risen to the occasion and never let the forfeits affect us."

Packer doesn't have state qualifier, four-year starter and Progressland First Team All-Star Chad Bickford returning because of graduation, but he does have a returning Southwest Regional Tournament qualifier in junior Doug Brown.

Brown, a 160-pound Second Team All-Star who went 26-13 as a sophomore, returns to the 160-pound spot. Last year, Brown recorded 13 regular decisions and seven major decisions.

"Doug Brown has been paying his dues," Packer said. "He's got lofty goals this season. One of them is to make it to states, and I think he can reach that goal. He's one of the hardest workers we have."

While Brown is a proven wrestler, Packer will have inexperience at the beginning of the lineup. Freshman Josh Gates will hit the mat at 103 pounds. He might have to be called upon to move up to 112 at times if sophomore Aaron Gittens can't go there.

"I think he should be able to handle the move up from the junior high," Packer said.

Junior Terry Collins, who went 13-10 wrestling between 103 and 112 pounds last season, will move up to 119 this season. "He's come along," Packer said. "I expect him to do all right."

After forfeiting at 125 or sending Collins out, Packer will have another freshman at 130 in Dustin Queen. "He's untested, but I think he'll be all right," Packer said. "He had good experience wrestling in the Junior Olympics."

Sophomore Calvin Glass will move up from the junior high and wrestle at 135. Another sophomore, Dan Weakland, whom Packer calls "promising," will go at 140 pounds.

At 145 will be junior Joe Luther, who went 11-15 as a sophomore at 135 and 140 but showed at times he could wrestle with the best of opponents.

"Luther looks like he has grown leaps and bounds," Packer said. "I expect big things from him. He was kind of on the edge with a lot of kids last year. He started to recognize his ability and I expect him to keep on that trail this year."

Sophomore Matt Caracciolo will fill the 152-pound spot. After Brown wrestles, senior Rich Gallaher will take to the mat at 171. Gallaher filled in for the injured Phil Smeal last year at heavyweight and went 2-1, despite having to struggle to reach the 188-pound minimum heavyweight weight limit.

"That will make a world of difference," Packer said of Gallaher wrestling at the lower weight. "He never gives up. I think he will do quite well."

Packer will have another experienced wrestler in senior Jeff Best at 189. Wrestling at that weight last season, Best went 20-7. Following him at heavyweight is senior Ken Brink, who didn't wrestle on varsity last year. He'll have to cut 10 pounds to reach the maximum limit of 275 pounds.

"People will be surprised with how fast he is for his size," Packer said of Brink.

The Vikings will get their untested wrestlers tested early as they open the season Friday at Claysburg-Kimmel.

"It's been going pretty good so far," said Packer, who will be assisted by Homer DeLattre. "We've been having hard practices. We scrimmaged against Penn Cambria and I was fairly pleased with that. We gotta work on early season stuff like conditioning and technique."
